VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Errors of the Star Exposed---Mr. McClimont's Views.

Lack of Facilities for the Registration of Voters.

THE CHURCH AND THE STAR.

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—For the last time I beg for some space in your valuable and widely circulated paper to give some further evidence in favor of my views in the McGlynn case. The evidence which I will now adduce is so conclusive that I expect it will put an end to the controversy which I have had with the Star on the subject. No less an authority than the great Archbishop Lynch of Toronto points to disobedience as the reason of Mr. McGlynn's excommunication. In a letter of Sept. 12th, addressed to Stewart Lyon, and published in the papers, His Grace of Toronto says:

"Dear Sir:—In answer to your question I say: First—Henry George's doctrine or book has not as yet been pronounced upon by the Holy See. Second—Dr. McGlynn's excommunication was occasioned by his persistent refusal to obey the command of the Holy See, to which he promised obedience as a Priest, and as an alumnus of the college of the Propaganda at Rome. Dr. McGlynn's case is purely ecclesiastical and not political.

Yours,
The Archbishop of Toronto."

Will the Star call into question the authority and veracity of so great and well-known a personage as Archbishop Lynch? As regards the authenticity of the pretended "bull of excommunication," for which the Philadelphia Evening Item vouches, I give what appeared in the "Baltimore Mirror" on the 30th of July last concerning it:

We notice that the excommunication of Dr. McGlynn has induced some of our enterprising contemporaries to republish the form of excommunication which is to be found in Sterne's veracious history of "Tristam Shandy." This document has appeared on more than one occasion, and its publication as the genuine form used by the Church has always been promptly refuted. Nevertheless, some secular papers and certain Protestant journals have repeated it this time, neglecting either through ignorance or malice, to attribute it to its true source. It was widely published about the time of Victor Emmanuel's excommunication, and his Eminence Cardinal Gibbons refers to it in his book, "The Faith of Our Fathers," in these terms:

"The 'curse' is attributed to the Holy Father, and is fulminated against Victor Emmanuel. In this anathema 'cursing' and 'damning' are heaped up in wild confusion. When this base forgery appeared an article exposing the falsehood of the production was published. We fear, however, that many read the slanderous charge who did not read its refutation. As to this 'curse' against Victor Emmanuel, so calumniously attributed to the Pope, I state here distinctly and positively that its author is not Pius IX, nor any Roman Pontiff, nor any Catholic priest or layman. It is to Rev. Laurence Sterne, minister of the Established Church of England, and to his romance of 'Tristam Shandy' that the English-speaking world is indebted for this infamous compilation." What will the Star say to that? This, Mr. Editor, ends the controversy.

A Catholic.

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—Nothing is more common than enquiries being made to know what course to adopt to ensure being put upon these Rolls as a voter, and to possess the right of enfranchisement, but which, instead of being easy of access, as it certainly should be in any well ordered community, if not altogether shrouded in mystery, involves a certain amount of enquiry, and explanation as to how it is to be accomplished. The indifference shown by the government upon this matter is really culpable, and causes hundreds of our citizens on the occasion of an election to be deprived of their just right and privilege. One of our Ministers when being spoken to upon this subject, replied: "Well, if those entitled to a vote, won't take the trouble to find out how it can be secured, they are not worth bothering about;" but this kind of answer to my mind in no way meets the merits of the case. I submit it is the duty of the government to have it made known by some public announcement, and when, and where, and to whom to apply? At one time, when we were a limited community, such information could easily be obtained at the sheriff's office at the old Police Barracks, but at the present time with our numerous additions to the population, no such facilities exist. It would almost seem by the supineness of the Ministry in this matter, that they feared the introduction of a fresh lot of voters may prove inimical to their interests, and that they had adopted the cautious policy "of letting sleeping dogs lie."

Junius.

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir—Were it not that points of interest were raised outside of the question at issue between "Catholic" and the Star, I would not have noticed it. But even here there is a middle ground. I'm quite prepared to believe the Star's "ball" a fraud, but if "Catholic" would publish the true bull, it would better prove it than all his lawyer-like quiddities. I'm inclined to believe, however, that the fraud had for its basis the real one; and in it doubtless all the functions of the person's body were cursed, and perhaps a few of the main ones mentioned, but surely not to the ridiculous extent of the one in the Star.

It is quite possible that "Baptist" was a misprint for Evangelist. As to the other incongruity mentioned, "Catholic" would do well to thoroughly post himself on theology before basing an argument on what he considers "bad theology," for there are some queer things in theology, and especially that concerning the mother of God. If "Catholic" accepts my challenge and publishes the real bull, I much mistake if the modernized Catholic will not find much in it he would rather not see. But "Catholic" cowardly threatens to withdraw the Catholic Liberal vote, because a newspaper, claiming to be Liberal, publishes an article ridiculing his religion. This is mixing religion and politics with a vengeance, and unwarrantably so, for I believe every Catholic outside of a few "Whips" will condemn his threat. The last great advocate for the unity of the Church and State (Gladstone) in his more mature years, gave it its death blow. And wheresoever it hangs on to-day it does so "by the skin of its teeth." I can well understand that a Catholic's politics were connected with his religion, when the great Dan. O'Connel was struggling for Catholic emancipation, but now that through the "triumphs of liberalism," the Catholic is not only emancipated, but in Ireland he is on perfect religious equality with any, and in the rest of the British Empire he is on a par with all Dissenters. His political principles should be independent of his religion. If a Catholic be Liberal, why that is his principle, it is part of him, and he should hold to it like the rest of us, or he would be a poor political comrade. If some paper or leader claiming to be Liberal, attacks or ridicules his religion, let him settle the difficulty with said paper or leader, and not threaten Liberalism with desertion. I believe that the generality of Catholics will endorse my view of the matter, in fact all but a few, who would like to hold them as a political map, as it is much easier, and requires less brain, for leaders to lead through religion than by statesmanship. And leaders among other denominations who are "larred with the same stick" are unfortunately for the nation not "few nor far between."

Though I stop here, I'm by no means done with my lawyer-like "Catholic," but will pay to him my respects in my next.

John J. McClimont.

CITY COUNCIL.

The Mayor Refuses to be a Party to Adopting Water Com. Report.

The regular meeting was called to order by His Worship Mayor Fell at 8:10 p. m. last evening. Present: Couns. Vigelius, Styles, Braden, Higgins and Barnard.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and, on motion, adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From O. Fletcher and C. Gieselman, requesting the construction of a gravel sidewalk on McClure street. Referred to Street Committee.

From J. W. Hutton, regarding the construction of a woolen mill. Mr. Hutton offered to construct a woolen mill in this city, provided the corporation would grant either a bonus or loan. The gentleman enclosed a number of samples of woolen goods manufactured by himself, and named a number of firms which could be written to regarding his standing and abilities.

Moved by Coun. Higgins that a copy of the Bonus By-law be forwarded to Mr. Hutton. Carried.

From W. Boddy, requesting permission to use Fisgard street for building purposes. Leave granted.

From A. W. Jones, Secretary of the Board of Fire Underwriters, calling attention to a building on the south side of Fort street. The roof is being shingled, which Mr. Jones considered contrary to the Fire By-Law. Referred to Fire Wardens and Inspector of Buildings.

From Walter Walker, secretary of School Trustees, requesting the Council to construct a sidewalk to the new school house at Spring Ridge. Referred to Street Committee.

From E. & N. Railway Company, calling attention to the defective sewer at the foot of Johnson street. Referred to Sanitary and Street Committees.

From the legal adviser regarding the refusal of His Worship to sign a cheque in favor of H. P. Bell, and recommending that the case be taken to the Supreme Court in order to test the legality of the Mayor's action. Received and filed.

REPORTS.

From the Finance Committee, recommending the insertion of an article descriptive of Victoria in a journal to be published in Montreal. Report adopted.

From the Police Committee recommending the purchase, by tender, of eleven suits of clothes for the City Police. Report adopted.

From the Street Committee recommending that a six-foot sidewalk be laid on the west side of Vancouver street, from Mears to Fort; that a three-foot longitudinal footwalk be laid on Pemberton street, from Fort to the city boundary, and that the Provincial Government be asked to lay a similar footpath from the last mentioned point, along Pemberton and Belcher streets to the eastern entrance of Government House; that a copy of the above recommendation be sent to the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works. Adopted.

From C. Blake, Sanitary Officer, regarding nuisances on Cook street and defective drainage on a number of streets throughout the city; also recommending the placing of traps in the underground drains. The Sanitary Officer called attention to the fact that only one man is engaged in cleaning the drains. Report adopted.

The Water Commissioner's report was read.

Coun. Braden said it was usual to go into committee on the report, and he moved that the Council go into Committee of the whole with His Worship in the chair. Seconded by Coun. Barnard.

His Worship said he wished it to be clearly understood that he was not a party to this by-law and, as Mayor of the city, he would sign no cheques for bills incurred under it. If the Council needed a chairman they could elect one from amongst themselves; he would have nothing to do with it.

The Mayor then left the chair, and an insufficient number of Councillors being present to form a quorum, the meeting was unceremoniously brought to a close.

THE SILVER DOLLAR.

A Saloon Inlaid With Silver Dollars ---Suggestive Device.

Mr. Charles Smith, a member of the New York State Assembly, is about to open his most gorgeous drinking saloon in New York City. The floor is inlaid with silver dollars, which are cemented in the marble floor in holes bored in alternate slabs—heads and tails up alternately. The handles of the beer pumps are mounted with silver dollars. The place is name "The Silver Dollar," and the sign bears a hugh counterfeit of the obverse and reverse of that coin. There are to be seen in the saloon in all about 700 silver dollars. Where is George Henry? However much he may be engaged with his larger project he cannot but feel it to be his imperative duty to nationalize this saloon floor. Like Hades, it is paved with good intentions.

From New York.

A nice line of Haman & Son's celebrated Boots and Shoes for men arrived at Erskine's Boot and Shoe Emporium, corner Government and Johnson streets.

Insulting Lord Lansdowne---Another Gladstone Convert.

TUPPER'S RETURN.

Toronto, Sept. 15.—The Globe's cable says: Sir Chas. Tupper sails by the Nova Scotia for Halifax on Tuesday. MacKenzie Bowell is now in Switzerland, and returns at the end of the month.

FARMERS' DAY.

This was Farmers' Day at the Exhibition and it was a great success, being the largest attendance since the opening, considerably over sixty thousand being present. Governor Campbell, Hon. Messrs. Mowat, Hardy and other notables were present.

MOWAT HOME AGAIN.

Mowat returned this morning from England looking well and feeling much benefited by the trip.

FIRST BLOOD FOR MANITOBA.

Winnipeg, Sept. 15.—In the Browning injunction case this morning, Chief Justice Wallbridge expressed the opinion that he would have to decide that the province had been proceeding legally in the construction of the Red River Valley Railroad under the Public Works Act. This probably will throw out all the private cases and leave the Dominion Injunction against crossing its land to be pitted against a properly legalized work.

A DOUBTFUL STORY.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 13.—Owing to the serious aspect of the railroad struggle in Manitoba the Dominion Government has ordered the militia which is stationed at Winnipeg to hold themselves in readiness to suppress any outbreak.

CONSERVATIVE YOUNG MEN.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—The Young Men's Liberal-Conservative Association, in session here for the last two days, elected Sir John and Mr. Meredith Honorary Presidents. Great regret was expressed at Sir John's inability to attend.

VALUABLE HORSES BURNED.

Sherbrooke, Sept. 15.—Fire broke out in the stables at the exhibition grounds, and before it could be stopped thirty valuable horses were burned to death.

INSULTING THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

Sherbrooke, Sept. 15.—While Lord Lansdowne was speaking at the opening of the Eastern Townships Exhibition he was greatly interrupted by an Irishman named Michael Lynch, who called him a "tyrant" and other names. The man was promptly arrested.

VICTORY FOR MERCIER.

Ottawa, Sept. 15.—The local election in Ottawa county between Cormier, Conservative, and Rochon, Liberal, has resulted in a victory for Premier Mercier. Rochon's majority is 1141. It is over 30 Conservative majority when Mr. Mercier carried a Liberal candidate.

Note—Last October at the general election the vote stood Cormier 2340; A. Rochon 1983; majority for Cormier 357. The above indicates a decided change in the political complexion of Ottawa county.

RETALIATING ON WINNIPEG.

The meeting adjourned until to-morrow to give the tellers a chance to count the votes. The following is the only ticket that was in the field, and is undoubtedly elected: August Belmont, Frederick Billings, John V. Brookman, Benj. P. Cheney, Robt. Harris, Brayton Ives, Thomas T. Oakes, Chas. B. Wright, Henry Villard, Edwin H. Abbott, Chas. L. Colby, Colgate Hoyt and John Trevor.

ANOTHER CONVERT.

London, Sept. 15.—It is reported that the Duke of Devonshire has been converted to Gladstone's Irish policy and is trying to induce his son, Lord Hartington, to abandon the dissidents.

MILLER AND DRING MURDER

Important Testimony by an Indian ---Weaving the Web.

Quamlet, the alleged murderer of Miller and Dring, was before the Provincial Court at 3 p. m. to-day. Supt. Roycraft informed the Court that Mr. Pollard was absent from the city.

Howhock, an Indian, sworn: Was in Nanaimo when Kaioos was hanged. Know prisoner; he was in Nanaimo on that day. Quamlet was at the hanging of his brother; prisoner said he was going to town to get a knife and returned; witness saw the knife, which was about ten inches long; prisoner said he felt good and would kill a white man or an Indian. He bought the knife from George Lockway; Kaioos' klootchman spoke to prisoner and he said he would kill some white man. Knew Johnnie, who is prisoner's cousin. The prisoner and Johnnie went away in a canoe; in two days they returned with nothing in the canoe but a musket; on the next morning Quamlet was drunk and said if a policeman came he would kill him with the knife which he was brandishing. Quamlet told witness that if he told anyone that prisoner was away from Nanaimo for two days prisoner would kill him; Quamlet promised witness $150 if he kept quiet; saw prisoner in gaol at Victoria and he told witness not to tell Supt. Roycraft anything. Prisoner never said anything about the murder.

The Court was still in session and more important Indian testimony was being taken.

Important.

CHILLIWHACK NEWS.

Provincial Exhibition—W. C. T. U. Convention—Temperance Work.

The exhibition hall, stalls and sheds are now completed on the agricultural grounds. The secretary has been sending prize lists and posters all over the province, and it is to be hoped that some have reached Victoria before the publication of this.

A building is in course of erection at Centreville that is expected to be used as a telegraph office shortly. The change will be of great convenience to the settlement.

Mr. Alfred Cawley, late of the Popcum Pump Works, has left for London, Ont., to consult eastern physicians. We wish him renewed health and safe return.

The cheese factory, owned and managed by Mr. A. C. Wells, is in excellent running order, producing first class cheese, in constant demand. We do not hesitate to recommend the above article to all parties in this province desiring the same, feeling confident that they will receive full value for their money.

Chilliwhack has been favored for the first time with the Women's Christian Temperance Union convention. The delegates arrived on Saturday by steamer William Irving, the round trip being only one fare. The sessions of the convention continued during Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, but as a report has already been given, I need not expatiate. By way of variation, on Tuesday evening a temperance lecture was given by Miss S. Bowes, who has been doing temperance work in British Columbia during this year, in place of her native province, Ontario. The subject of her lecture was "The Juggernaut of Christendom." The hall was crowded with an audience, all of whom seemed to appreciate beyond measure the arguments produced. Several have remarked that they never heard a more able lecture delivered by anyone. Time nor space will not allow me to go into details. It is to be hoped that Miss Bowes will again favor us during the autumn season; if so, we can assure her a full house in this settlement, where temperance so strongly predominates thus far as to prevent the license system gaining a foothold. I would like to make mention of an excellent temperance work, entitled "Land Labor and Liquor," just from the press, now being introduced into this province by Miss Bowes, who, we trust, will be very successful, as the book is calculated to instruct and enlighten relative to the evil and the remedy.

On Wednesday evening the platform was occupied by the W. C. T. U. executive and the ministers, who were about to attend the Methodist district meeting. After good music by the choir and prayer offered by Rev. Hemlaw, the President called upon the Rev. Jas. White, of New Westminster, late of Hamilton, Ont., to address the meeting. He unmistakeably declared his principles in favor of total abstinence, and the speedy overthrow of the liquor curse. He was followed by Rev. E. Robson, of Vancouver, President of B. C. Conference, who gave a very original and humorous address, which, at times, excited the audience to moderate laughter and great delight.

Three missionary meetings were held in the settlement under the auspices of the Methodist Church. Centreville being the one that I attended, was conducted by Mrs. A. C. Wells, who occupied the chair, and addressed by Revs. Seccombe, White and Patterson. Owing to division the audience was small, but music stirring, speeches good and collection liberal. Doubtless Cheam and Sumas could report similarly.

The settlers are now free from excuse for non-attendance on the public ministry of the word, as there are two resident pastors.

YALE NEWS.

Personal References — Departures from Yale---Office of Constable.

The recent showers have dispelled the smoke and given us an atmosphere that savors strong of frost and snow in the near future.

Lady Macdonald and her daughter passed through here yesterday, en route to the Harrison Hot Springs, which are rapidly becoming famous as the great sanitarium of America.

The C. P. R men have been making considerable repairs on the road of late through this locality, having replaced most of the trestle bridges with the more substantial system of pile structure.

Our town is getting pretty well reduced in population even the Chinamen deserting us, but still some of us hang on with a tenacity of hope almost equal to the Mainland Guardian and Moodyites, but we trust with more encouraging results.

Mr. Johnston, the master mechanic of the C. P. R., has removed his offices to Vancouver, and to-day his family leaves to take up their permanent residence in the terminal city. This leaves only the station agent now to represent the company here.

Mr. James Fraser, the widely known watchmaker of Yale for several years, has moved his family to Westminster, but purposes continuing his business at Hope which will be his headquarters for a time. He will be much missed here.

The office of Government Constable has been dispensed with and a gentleman from Victoria has been appointed caretaker of the jail and court house. As there are families here whom this position would have greatly aided under adverse circumstances it was thought that some of them were better entitled to the Government crumbs than an entire stranger from a remote village. Mr. Wilson, the late constable, who was a great favorite and will be much missed, has taken up his abode in Hope for the present.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember! No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

An effort will be made to repeal the Scott Act in Simcoe and Haldimand counties, Ontario.

THE COLONIST AND THE MAYOR.

Mayor FELL does not expect fair criticism from the Colonist, and therefore is not disappointed when he reads untruthful squibs in that veracious sheet. He has repeated over and over again that he will stand by the by-law voted on by the people, and will not be a party to spending the $75,000 authorized thereby, or any portion thereof, for any other purpose or in any other way than contemplated by the ratepayers when they recorded their votes. In pursuance of this policy he has refused to sign a check in favor of Mr. BERG, C. E., who besides endorsing the HENRAY scheme was employed by individual members of the Council to formulate a new and entirely different plan for improving the water works. The Colonist talks about applying to the court for a mandamus to compel the Mayor to sign the check and exults in the belief that His Worship would have to foot the bill. Possibly, if the party applying for the mandamus was not saddled with the costs the Mayor might have to bear the expense; but Coun. HIGGINS' organ does not say who is going to initiate the action. The Mayor is the executive head of the corporation, and as such is not likely to enter an action against himself. Mayor FELL's position on this vexed question is quite explicable. He is determined to carry out what he believes to be the wishes of the ratepayers, and he absolutely refuses to have anything to do with the new commissioner's report. A majority of the Council is against him, and by power of numbers can carry any scheme they wish. Mayor FELL says to them, "very well, gentlemen, I am not with you; appoint another chairman." Having a majority of the Council at his back, Coun. HIGGINS can carry his pet scheme through independent of the Mayor. The responsibility will then rest upon him and those acting with him. Such being the case, it is puerile to talk about "obstructions," "mandamuses" "corkscrews," &c.,&c. If the opponents of the Mayor are sure they are right, why don't they go ahead?

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.

In less than two weeks the British Columbia Agricultural Society will hold its Annual Exhibition at Chilliwhack. THE TIMES has always taken a warm interest in this, one of our most deserving institutions, and will continue to do so in the future. But in the public interest it becomes our duty to animadvert somewhat sharply on the manner in which the arrangements for this season's exhibition are being carried out. Beyond a very limited number in this city, none are aware that an exhibition is to be held. It is true an advertisement, announcing the event, appears in the newspapers, but not the sign of a poster or placard can be observed. Everyone does not read the newspapers, and valuable as they undoubtedly are as advertising mediums, they are but helpers in circulating announcements which should be supplemented by posters; so that "he that runs may read." No announcement is yet made of arrangements having been completed with the transportation companies for the conveyance of stock or goods intended for the exhibition, nor reduced rates to exhibitors. All this is very unsatisfactory. It will be a most unfortunate occurrence if the effort this year should result in failure. Chilliwhack admittedly is one of our best agricultural sections. Settled as it is by a spirited, energetic class, intelligent beyond the average, and possessing many advantages, it was the fondest hope of those who took an interest in the society, that every means would be resorted to this year to make the show a success. Unless we are greatly mistaken—and we shall be pleased to know that our conjectures have proven to have been incorrect—the outlook is not at all favorable to anger success for the forthcoming exhibition. If these important considerations have been overlooked, others equally essential to success, we fear, have likewise been omitted. We hope the officers will at once set to work and remedy the defects and shortcomings we have thus pointed out.

The prize list in many respects is a duplicate of last year's one. Important changes, however are observable, from which we opine that some have been trying their 'prentice hands on making a prize list book. In class A, Durhams and Holsteins appear under the same classification, making it an impossibility to distinguish between these two breeds. They have no more right to be thus classed than Guinea fowl and the Cochins in the poultry classes. Little encouragement is thus given to those importing the noble majestic Durham—the best and the favorite of the short horn family—as a beef producer. The Holsteins are not noted as beef takers, but as milkers. The blunder of coupling them together is an egregious one. We find a new breed has been discovered, that of the "Hertfords." Possibly it is the Herefords which it was intended to name. None of this class, nor the Devons—both favorites for their peculiar traits and points—so far as known to us, are in the Province. The special prizes in Division F.—the produce of the dairy—after being printed are marked out with red pencil, disfiguring the page. A similar process has been adopted in Division I.—fruit. There are other defects which could be referred to.

The Society is in receipt of public money—the grant from the Provincial Treasury being $1000. Hence it is a public institution, and as such its management should be such as to raise it above fault being found therewith. Many in Victoria have signified a wish to visit the exhibition, but they are utterly at sea as to accommodation, the transportation system or any other arrangement. Let the officers at once enlighten us on these points. It was by the merest accident that a prize list fell into our hands. As yet THE TIMES has not received a copy from the Directors. If our contemporaries have been equally badly treated there is indeed much room to fear that some one has bungled, and that the exhibition will suffer thereby.

Since the foregoing was in type our Chilliwhack correspondent writes that posters have been issued and sent to all parts of the Province. We have learned that a few did reach this city, but as yet they are not posted on the fences.

A CAPITAL MOVE.

A movement is on foot on the mainland to organize a Fruit Growers' Association. This is a step in the right direction and one that will commend itself to all progressive people in this province. Similar associations prevail elsewhere and have been the means of accomplishing much good and leaving the impress of their efforts on the country. We think, however, that the association contemplates too much when it attempts to secure a tract of a couple of hundred acres from the Dominion whereon to grow and experiment with fruit. That will be the province of the proposed experimental farm shortly to be established in British Columbia. A spirit of rivalry and emulation must possess the people giving attention to fruit culture in their own orchards. In fruit as in stock a rivalry begets the best which capital and skill can produce. The experimental farm will not be a competitor in that sense but it will act as an educator and prove a stimulus and incentive to fruit growers, farmers and others to even excell its best productions. By all means organize a Fruit Growers' Association, Horticultural and other Societies. All are calculated to accomplish good and where properly conducted have never failed in doing so.

THE HERALD'S TWADDLE.

Because we copied the only intelligible sentence in a pointless editorial in the Vancouver Herald, the editor of that cranky journal complains somewhat bitterly, and suggests that we should have given the whole paragraph. Our contemporaray ought to know that our space is too limited, and the intelligence of our readers of too high an order, to permit of the reproduction of so much twaddle. A writer who confesses that he knows nothing about the provincial finances should not discuss them.

CHAPTER IX.

INTO THE UNKNOWN.

A week had passed, and we all sat at supper one night in the Mission dining room, feeling very much depressed in spirits, for the reason that we were going to say goodby to our kind friends the Mackenzies, and depart upon our way at dawn on the morrow. Nothing more had been seen or heard of the Masai, and save for a spear or two which had been overlooked, and was rusting in the grass, and a few empty cartridges where we had stood outside the wall, it would have been difficult to tell that the old cattle kraal at the foot of the slope had been the scene of so desperate a struggle. Mackenzie was, thanks chiefly to his being so temperate a man, rapidly recovering from his wound, and could get about on a pair of crutches, and as for the other wounded men, one had died of gangrene, and the rest were in a fair way to recovery. Mr. Mackenzie's caravan of men had also returned from the coast, so that the station was now amply garrisoned.

Under these circumstances we concluded, warm and pressing as were the invitations for us to stay, that it was time to move on, first to Mr. Kenia, and thence into the unknown in search of the mysterious white race which we had set our hearts on discovering. This time we were going to progress by means of the humble but useful donkey, of which we had collected no less than a dozen to carry our goods and chattels, and, if necessary, ourselves. We had now but two Wakwafi left for servants, and found it quite impossible to get other natives to venture with us into the unknown parts we proposed to explore.

That evening, while we were sitting on the veranda, smoking a pipe before turning in, who should come up to us but Alphonse, and with a magnificent bow announce his wish for an interview. Being requested to fire away, he explained at some length that he was anxious to attach himself to our party—a statement that astonished me not a little, knowing what a coward the little man was. The reason, however, soon appeared. Mr. Mackenzie was going down to the coast, and thence on to England. Now, if he went down country, Alphonse was persuaded that he would be seized, extradited, sent to France and guillotined. This was the idea that haunted him, as King Charles' head haunted Mr. Dick, and he brooded over it till his imagination exaggerated the danger ten times. As a matter of fact, the probability is that his offence against the laws of his country had long ago been forgotten, and that he would have been allowed to pass unmolested anywhere except in France; but he could not be got to see this. Constitutional coward as the little man was, he infinitely preferred to face the certain hardships and great risks and dangers of such an expedition as ours than to expose himself, notwithstanding his intense longing for his native land, to the possible scrutiny of a police officer—which is, after all, only another exemplification of the truth that, to the majority of men, a far off, foreseen danger, however shadowy, is much more terrible than the most serious present emergency. After listening to what he had to say, we consulted among ourselves, and finally agreed, with Mr. Mackenzie's knowledge and consent, to accept his offer. To begin with, we were very short-handed, and Alphonse was a quick, active fellow, who could turn his hand to anything, and cook—ah, he could cook! I believe that he would have made a palatable dish of those gaiters of his heroic grandfather which he was so fond of talking about. Then he was a good tempered little man, and merry as a monkey, while his pompous, vainglorious talk was a source of infinite amusement to us, and what is more, he never bore malice. Of course, his being so profoundest a coward was a great drawback to him, but even that we knew for a weakness, we could more or less guard against it. So, after warning him of the undoubted risks he was exposing himself to, we told him that we would accept his offer on condition that he would promise implicit obedience to our orders. We also promised to give him wages at the rate of £10 a month should he ever return to a civilized country to receive them. To all of this he agreed with alacrity, and retired to write a letter to his Annette, which Mr. Mackenzie promised to post when he got down country. He read it to us afterward, Sir Henry translating, and a wonderful composition it was. I am sure the depth of his devotion and the narration of his sufferings in a barbarous country, "far, far from thee, Annette, for whose adored sake I endure such sorrow," ought to have touched up the feelings of the stoniest hearted chambermaid.

Well, the morrow came, and by 7 o'clock the donkeys were all loaded, and the time of parting was at hand. It was a melancholy business, especially saying goodby to dear little Flossie. She and I were great friends, and often used to have talks together—but her nerves had never got over the shock of that awful night when she lay in the power of those bloodthirsty Masai. "Oh, Mr. Quatermain," she cried, throwing her arms round my neck and bursting into tears, "I can't bear to say goodby to you. I wonder when we shall meet again?"

"I don't know, my dear little girl," I said. "I am at one end of life and you are at the other. I have but a short time before me at best, and most things lie in the past, but I hope that for you there are many long and happy years, and everything lies in the future. By and by you will grow into a beautiful woman, Flossie, and all this wild life will be like a far off dream to you, but I hope, even if we never do meet again, that you will think of your old friend and remember what I say to you now. Always try to be good, my dear, and to do what is right, rather than what happens to be pleasant, for in the end, whatever sneering people may say, what is good and what is happy are the same. Be unselfish, and whenever you can, give a helping hand to others—for the world is full of suffering, my dear, and to alleviate it is the noblest end that we can set before us. If you do that you will become a sweet and God fearing woman and make many people's lives a little brighter, and then you will not have lived, as so many of your sex do, in vain. And now I have given you a lot of old fashioned advice, and so I am going to give you something to sweeten it with. You see this little piece of paper. It is what is called a check. When we are gone give it to your father with this note—not before, mind. You will marry one day, my dear little Flossie, and it is to buy you a wedding present which you are to wear, and your daughter after you, if you have one, in remembrance of Hunter Quatermain."

Poor little Flossie cried very much, and gave me a lock of her bright hair in return, which I still have. The check I gave her was for £1,000 (which, being now well off, and having no calls upon me except those of charity, I could well afford), and in the note I directed her father to invest it for her in government security, and when she married or came of age, to buy her the best diamond necklace he could get for the money and accumulated interest. I chose diamonds because I think now that King Solomon's mines are lost to the world, their price will never be much lower than it is at present; so that if in after life she should ever be in pecuniary difficulties, she will be able to turn them into money.

Well, at last we got off after much handshaking, hat waving, and also farewell saluting from the natives, Alphonse weeping copiously (for he has a warm heart) at parting with his master and mistress; and I was not sorry for it at all, for I hate those goodbys. Perhaps the most affecting thing of all was to witness Umslopogaas' distress at parting with Flossie, for whom the grim old warrior had conceived a strong affection. He used to say that she was as sweet to see as the only star on a dark night, and was never tired of loudly congratulating himself on having killed the Lygonani who had threatened to murder her. And that was the last we saw of the pleasant Mission home—a true oasis in the desert land of European civilization. But I often think of the Mackenzies, and wonder how they got down country, and if they are now safe and well in England, and will ever see these words. Dear little Flossie! I wonder how she fares there where there are no black folk to do her imperious bidding, and no sky piercing, snow clad Kenia for her to look at when she gets up in the morning. And so goodby to Flossie.

After leaving the Mission house we made our way comparatively unmolested past the base of Mount Kenia, which the Masai call "Donyo Egere," or the "speckled mountain," on account of the black patches of rock that appear upon its mighty spire, where the sides are too precipitous to allow of the snow lying on them; then on past the lonely lake Baringo, where one of our two remaining Askari, having unfortunately trodden upon a puff adder, died of snake bite in spite of all our efforts to save him. Thence we proceeded a distance of about 150 miles to another magnificent snow clad mountain, called Lekakisera, which has, never, to the best of my belief, been visited before by a European, but which I cannot now stop to describe. There we rested a fortnight, and then started out into the trackless and uninhabited forest of a vast district called Elgumi. On emerging from the great Elgumi forest, we, still steering northward, in accordance with the information Mr. Mackenzie had collected from the unfortunate wanderer who reached him only to die so tragically, struck the base in due course of the large lake called Laga by the natives, which is about fifty miles long by twenty broad, and of which it may be remembered he made mention. Thence we pushed on nearly a month's journey over gently rolling uplands something like those in the Transvaal, but diversified by patches of bush country.

Into the unknown.

All this time we were continually ascending at the rate of about 100 feet every ten miles. Indeed, the country was on a slope which appeared to terminate at a mass of snow tipped mountains, for which we were steering, and where we learned the second lake, of which the wanderer had spoken as the lake without a bottom, was situated. At length we arrived there, and having ascertained that there was a large lake on the top of the mountains, ascended 3,000 feet more till we came to a precipitous cliff or edge, to find a great sheet of water, some twenty miles square, lying 1,500 feet below us and evidently occupying an extinct volcanic crater or craters of vast extent. Perceiving villages on the border of this lake, we descended with great difficulty through forests of pine trees, which now clothed the precipitous sides of the crater, and were well received by the people, a simple, unwarlike folk, who had never seen or even heard of a white man before, and treated us with great reverence and kindness, supplying us with as much food and milk as we could eat and drink. This wonderful and beautiful lake lay, according to our aneroid, at a height of no less than 11,450 feet above sea level, and its climate was cool, moist, and equable as that of England. Indeed, for the first three days of our stay there we saw hardly anything of the scenery, on account of an unmistakable Scotch mist which prevailed. It was this rain that set the tsetse poison working in our remaining donkeys, so that they all died.

This disaster left us in a very awkward position, as we had now no means of transport whatever, though, on the other hand, we had not much to carry. Ammunition, too, was very short, amounting to but 150 rounds of rifle cartridges and some fifty shotgun cartridges. How to get on we did not know; indeed it seemed to us that we had about reached the end of our tether. Even if we had been inclined to abandon the object of our search, which, shadowy as it was, was by no means the case, it was ridiculous to think of forcing our way back some 700 miles to the coast in our present plight; so we came to the conclusion that the only thing to be done was to stop where we were—the natives being so well disposed and food plentiful—for the present, and abide events and try to collect information as to the countries beyond.

Accordingly, having purchased a capital log canoe, large enough to hold us all and our baggage, from the headman of the village we were staying in, presenting him with three empty cold drawn brass cartridges by way of payment, with which he was perfectly delighted, we set out to make a tour of the lake in order to find the most favorable place to make a camp. As we did not know it we should return to this village, we put all our gear into the canoe, and also a quarter of cooked water buck, which when young is delicious eating, and off we set, natives having already gone before us in light canoes to warn the inhabitants of the other villages of our approach.

As we went we began to pass a considerable accumulation of floating rushes, weed, boughs of trees, and other rubbish, brought, Good supposed, to this spot by some current, which he was much puzzled to account for. While we were speculating about this, Sir Henry pointed out a flock of large white swans, which were feeding on the drift some little way ahead of us. Now I had already noticed swans flying about this lake, and having never come across them before in Africa, was exceedingly anxious to obtain a specimen. I had questioned the natives about them, and learned that they came from over the mountain, always arriving at certain periods of the year in the early morning, when it was very easy to catch them, on account of their exhausted condition.

Well, we set to work to stalk the swans, which kept drawing as they fed nearer and nearer to the precipice, and at last we pushed the canoe under shelter of a patch of drift within forty yards of them. Sir Henry had the shotgun loaded with No. 4, and waiting for a chance, got two in a line, and, firing at their necks, killed them both. Up rose the rest, thirty or more of them, with a mighty splashing, and, as they did so, he gave them the other barrel. Down came one fellow with a broken wing, and I saw the leg of another drop and a few feathers start out of his back, but he went on quite strong. On went the swans, circling ever higher till at last they were mere specks level with the top of the frowning precipice, when I saw them form into a triangle and bend off for the unknown northeast. Meanwhile we had picked up our two dead ones, and beautiful birds they were, weighing not less than about thirty pounds each, and were chasing the winged one, which had scrambled over a mass of drift weed into a pool of clear water beyond. Finding a difficulty in forcing the canoe through the rubbish, I told our only remaining Wakwafi servant, whom I knew to be an excellent swimmer, to jump over, dive under the drift, and catch him, knowing that as there were no crocodiles in this lake he could come to no harm. Entering into the fun of the thing the man did so, and soon was doing about after the winged swan in fine style, getting gradually nearer to the rock wall, against which the water washed as he did so.

Suddenly he gave up swimming after the swan, and began to cry out that he was being carried away; and indeed we saw that, though he was swimming with all his strength toward us, he was being drawn slowly toward the precipice. With a few desperate strokes of our paddles we pushed the canoe through the crust of drift and rowed toward the man as hard as we could, but, fast as we went, he was drawn faster toward the rock. Suddenly I saw that before us, just rising eighteen inches or so above the surface of the lake, was what looked like the top of the arch of a submerged cave or railway tunnel. Evidently, from the water mark on the rock several feet above it, it was generally entirely submerged, but there had been a dry season, and the cold had prevented the snow from melting as freely as usual, so the lake was low and the arch showed. Toward this arch our poor servant was being sucked with frightful rapidity. He was not more than twenty paces from it, and we were about thirty when I saw it, and with little help from us the canoe flew along after him. He struggled bravely, and I thought that we should have saved him, when suddenly I perceived an expression of despair come upon his face, and then before our eyes he was sucked down into the orifice, swirling, blue depths, and vanished; at the same moment I felt our canoe seized as with a mighty hand and propelled with resistless force toward the rock.

We realized our danger now, and rowed, or rather paddled, furiously in our attempt to get out of the vortex. In vain; in another second we were flying straight for the arch like an arrow, and I thought that we were lost. Luckily, I retained sufficient presence of mind to shout out, instantly setting the example by throwing myself into the bottom of the canoe, "Down on your faces—down!" and the others had the sense to take the hint. In another instant there was a grinding noise, and the boat was pushed down till the water began to trickle over the sides, and I thought that we were gone. But no; suddenly the grinding ceased, and we could again feel the canoe flying along. I turned my head a little—I dared not lift it—and looked up. By the feeble light that yet reached the canoe I could make out that a dense arch of rock hung just over our heads, and that was all. In another minute I could not even make out as much as that, for the faint light had merged into shadow, and the shadows had been swallowed up in darkness utter and complete.

For an hour or so we lay there, not daring to lift our heads for fear lest the brains should be dashed out of them, and scarcely able to speak even, on account of the noise of the rushing water which drowned our voices. Not, indeed, that we had much inclination to speak, seeing that we were overwhelmed by the awfulness of our position and the imminent fear of instant death, either by being dashed against the sides of the cavern or on a rock, or being sucked down in the raging waters, or perhaps asphyxiated by want of air. All of these and many other modes of death presented themselves to my imagination as I lay at the bottom of the canoe listening to the swirl of the hurrying waters, which ran whither we knew not. One other sound only could I hear, and that was Alphonse's intermittent howl of terror coming from the center of the canoe, and even that seemed faint and unreal. Indeed the whole thing overpowered my brain, and I began to believe that I was the victim of some ghostly, spirit shaking nightmare.

"Landed!"

Tommy (bride's little brother, after the ceremony)—Did it hurt—the hook?

Bridegroom (never did like that boy)—Hurt—the hook? What do you mean, dear Tommy—'Cause ma said Lizzy'd flished for yer a long time, but she'd hooked yer at last!"—Punch.

Commercial Report.

Since our last quotations there has been but slight alterations in prices current. Flour still maintains former quotations. It was expected that the break in the California wheat ring would demoralize the produce market in Oregon and California. Winnipeg and Northwest flour is entering largely into consumption in this city and on the mainland. In a few weeks it is expected that brands from the Okanagan mills will be placed on the market. If the quality will be all that is claimed for it, there will be a brisk demand for this flour, as it is believed prices will be somewhat lower than those now prevailing. Wheat, oats, barley and hay have fallen from $2 to $8 per ton since our last quotations. Potatoes have sympathized and also fallen. Eggs and butter have been creeping up. Our quotations for these indicate a firmness in the market. From Brandon, Portage la Prairie and Winnipeg, a considerable quantity of the product of the hen and the dairy reaches the coast daily. Importers are enabled to pay the high express rates and have a considerable balance to the good as between cost laid down and prices realized. Thus whilst British Columbia supplies fruit to the Northwest we, in exchange, receive the commodities named. There is this difference, however: The fruit is not the growth of this province entirely; it is merely handled here. Manitoba produces her own exports. The fruit season may be said to be at an end. It has been a purely remunerative one to our local dealers. Hereafter it is certain channels for this branch of commerce will be somewhat changed, as our province will grow considerable.

Business generally may be reported as having been fairly satisfactory during the last few weeks. A considerable quantity of goods have changed hands. Country dealers have been carefully sorting up, working off their spring and summer stocks preparatory to laying in a fall and winter supply. Eastern houses have sent diligent travelers to this coast. These are anxious to do business, and as a consequence buyers in many cases have been able to make their own terms. This applies to hardware manufactures generally as well as to dry goods and textiles.

Money is plentiful for business purposes. The opening of the Bank of Montreal at Vancouver with its vast capital will become an important factor in commercial circles in the province, and aid in a substantial manner in the developing of our resources. The Banks of British Columbia and North America are pursuing a liberal policy towards business men. So far then, as money is concerned there is no occasion for complaint on the score of want of capital. Building in Vancouver and New Westminster, as well as in Kamloops and other interior towns is being prosecuted with agreat vigor. Contractors have their hands full and mechanics are being paid good wages.

The many strangers visiting the province have gone back with favorable impressions of our resources. It is certain capital in consequence will flow thither freely from the east and from Britain and the continent for investment. The indications are that this fall and winter will witness a large influx of immigration from the eastern provinces of people anxious to escape from the rigorous climate prevailing there.

A Railway Phenomenon.

It is a strange fact, observes the Chicago Tribune, that many Americans of distinction are going across the continent this year by way of the Canadian Pacific Railway. This may not be susceptible of the explanation that Canada has no Inter-State Commerce law to prevent the issuing of passes; but if there is any other way to explain the phenomenon we should like to know what in the name of Daniel Pratt it is.

Gladstone Cigars.

Cedar Hill.

The entertainment given by the young ladies of St. Luke's church, Cedar Hill, on Tuesday evening, was a great success. Quite a number of visitors from the city were present. The programme prepared for the occasion was an excellent one. In both vocal and instrumental selections those who took part did so with great credit and marked ability. Another entertainment is on the tapis. Look out for it.

Butter and Eggs.

Advices from Manitoba are to the effect that a very brisk advance has taken place in the price of butter and eggs there. The dry season in Ontario had the effect of scorching the grass and pasture to such an extent that the product fell off very largely. The demand for eggs in the United States has had a sympathetic effect on the Manitoba market. It is very evident the lines of the Manitoba farmer this year have fallen in pleasant places, notwithstanding the threatened trouble over the Red River Valley railway. Prices there have now reached a figure which importers here cannot reach. The home product and fruit from across the Sound then has to be depended upon.

Gone Abroad.

Charles A. Mathieu, until recently the cashier in the employ of Balfour, Guthrie & Co., commission merchants, at No. 316 California street, San Francisco, is the latest acquisition to the American colony abroad. The firm was disagreeably surprised by the receipt of a letter from the absconding cashier, informing them that he was safe and sound and on his way to South America. The envelope was postmarked from Victoria, British Columbia, and the communication invited correspondence with the writer. It so happened that since his departure the firm had taken the liberty of examining the young man's accounts, and had found that he was a defaulter to a large amount—probably $20,000.

Give Them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

—Kurtz's Jubilee Cigars are now ready.

ON THE WING.

Movements of People We Know and have Read of.

Mr. J. A. Clark, of Toronto, is at the Clarence.

Dr. McSwain and family are guests at the Clarence.

Mr. W. H. Laduer, M. P. P., paid the spiral a flying visit to-day.

The Misses Finlayson were amongst the passengers from the mainland last night.

Mrs. John Grant returned from a visit to the Harrison Hot Springs last night. She enjoyed the benefits of that fine watering place for about a week.

Mr. W. P. Caine, M. P. for Barrow-in-Furness, England, now on his way to this city, will extend his visit to Japan ere he returns.

Mr. T. B. Smith, Manager for the Hudsons Bay Company in this city, and a party of chief factors will reach Victoria to-night.

The Earls and Lords in town were the guests of the Admiral and officers of the fleet last night. Some of them leave for the east this evening.

Mr. Noah Shakespeare, M. P., left for Harrison Hot Springs this morning to try the efficacy of the thermal waters for the removal of a severe cold, which has stuck to him for several months closer than a supporter in search of an office.

Mr. A. G. Ramsay, President and General Manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company, Hon. Mr. Justice Burton and John Stuart, all of Hamilton, Ont., are on their way to this province.

Lady Macdonald returned east on Wednesday from Vancouver. She visited New Westminster on Tuesday. Her ladyship did not extend her visit this year to Victoria. Why, no one can tell.

In the Days of '59.

Yesterday the men digging a trench for the gas pipes opposite Mr. Lange's jewelry store, Government street, came across one of the wooden pipes which had been placed there in 1859 in connection with the water works system of that day, in which Mr. Bunster played an important part. The pipes were manufactured by Messrs. Coe & Martin at Hope, and floated down the Fraser to New Westminster and thence towed to this city. The log was in excellent condition, as fresh and as perfectly sound as the day it was laid there, notwithstanding that 27 long years have elapsed since. This attests the lasting qualities of our Douglas fir, which is even more durable than the very best of cedar. When these pipes were laid, water was water, dearer even than many classes of liquor. Mr. I. Bravermann then delivered water throughout the city at the rate of 25 cents a pail. His deliveries never were less than 100 pails, and frequently as high as 250. He had a monopoly of the water, having secured control of the only flowing well in the neighborhood. It is said that when the thirsty approached a bar and wished their liquor diluted with the "sparkling and bright," another extra 25 cents was demanded as the price to be paid for the water. Those were in the early days and history of this city. Since then great changes have taken place all round. The greatest of all the improvements is the water works system, imperfect although it still is.

Physiology and Hygiene.

The educational department has secured for the use of the public schools copies of "White's Physiological Manikin," prepared under the superintendence of Frank H. Hamilton, M. D., L. L. D., one of the most distinguished medical practitioners in New York, and who became so famous in connection with the illness of the late President Garfield. In the preparation of this excellent work Dr. Hamilton was assisted by Drs. Delafield and Prudden. By the use of the Manikin it is intended to make known, even to the youngest pupils, the operations and functions of the human body, without recourse to the shambles or the dissecting-room. The work will greatly assist the teacher by placing before the pupils an object lesson from which they draw, almost in spite of themselves, the position and relations of the different parts of the body, and the cause and means of prevention of many of the derangements to which the human system is liable. Accompanying the Manikin is a text book, so arranged that each organ and function is minutely described. The series of microscopical plates were prepared at great expense by the State of New York for its Normal schools. The plates are indestructible being made of cardboard with a cloth lining and varnished. Unquestionably it is as far in advance of the old, antiquated idea of having plates hung on the walls of our school rooms as is the globe over the hanging map. They will be found to be a valuable aid to our teachers and if our young people grow up without fully knowing themselves the fault will be their own, not that of the educational system.

We understand these Manikins have also been introduced into the convents in this city and New Westminster, where they are highly appreciated for their general excellence and perfection.

Roller Skating Rink Open Every Day.

Catarrah, Catarrahal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever is cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp, by A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard.

Scarcity of Cars.

A correspondent writing from Vancouver states that every available box car has been sent east from that point to Brandon, Broadview, Portage la Prairie and Winnipeg to help in moving the grain crop, which is now being threshed. The cars used by the Italians wherein to sleep are being sent, notwithstanding the almost fabulous prices paid by the sons of this sunny clime for their poor sleeping accommodation.

New Drug Store.

R. Atwood & Co. have opened their drug store on Government street, next door to Neufelder & Ross, where can be found a full line of drugs, chemicals, toilet articles, patent medicines, etc., etc. Physicians' prescriptions carefully compounded. R. ATWOOD & Co.

POLICE COURT.

Recovery of Wages—The Alleged Poisoning Case in Court.

Roderick Morrison summoned the C. P. N. Co. for wages due for work performed on the steamer Yosemite. Mr. Taylor appeared for plaintiff and Mr. Bodwell for C. P. N. Co.

Roderick Morrison, sworn: Was employed as fireman on the steamer Yosemite; worked off and on for the past two years. Wages raised twice, and on the 5th inst. articles were brought to witness to sign; he refused. The captain told Morrison to sign the articles or go ashore. Witness went ashore after reading the articles.

To Mr. Bodwell: Read the articles and did not sign them, because witness thought it would interfere with his privileges. The captain simply told witness to go ashore if he would not sign.

To His Honor: Worked four days on the Yosemite and one on the Louise.

Case adjourned until to-morrow for the production of further evidence.

Capt. White, of the sealing schooner Lottie Fairfield, was summoned by Thomas Drysdale for wages due. Mr. Taylor appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Bodwell for the defendant.

The plaintiff stated that he was employed as cook and steward on the Lottie Fairfield from May 29th until 29th July; on the last named date witness cooked breakfast, and two hours afterwards witness heard that the captain was sick. During the afternoon the mate called witness out of the galley and put him in irons. Asked to see the captain and was taken down; the captain was lying in his bunk; he told witness that he had been drinking the whiskey and that witness had poisoned him. The captain then struck witness and as Drysdale left the captain's room he alluded to the strength of the poisoned captain. Was put in the hold on July 29th and kept there until September 10th. Witness was released in this port; the captain said that there was a small bottle of acid found in witness' bunk, and that it was arsenic. The bottle contained muriatic acid, which was in the galley when witness joined the vessel. The captain told witness that he, the captain, would do nothing to Drysdale as he had been already punished for poisoning him; asked the captain for wages and he said he would have witness arrested for poisoning him. If the captain had paid witness and secured a permit for him to go to the hospital he would not have sued for his wages.

To Mr. Bodwell—Don't know whether any of the men have received their pay. Put this acid in the bunk; there was a medical chest on board; know the symptoms of poisoning with muriatic acid; cooked the men's breakfast before the captain's was cooked; had a conversation with the cabin boy, who was taken sick after breakfast. Had taken two or three drinks from the captain's cabin; the captain offered to fix up a room on deck, but witness preferred to remain in the hold; was fed on bread and water for ten days; was as comfortable as possible in the hold; the captain was sick two days.

To His Honor—Arrived in Victoria on Saturday morning; no charge has been made against witness, and none was read over during confinement on the schooner.

Capt. White, sworn—About 7 a. m. on July 29th, got up and gave usual orders; the hunters had already taken their breakfast; sat down to a breakfast of fried codfish and potatoes. Shortly after felt a burning sensation and dizziness, with symptoms of poisoning; sent for the mate and expected to die. Drysdale was tied up and put in the hold; when witness recovered he told complainant that he could go in the cabin; he preferred to stay in the hold. Never gave orders to confine the man; did not rescind the orders.

To Mr. Taylor—Offered Drysdale $50; have read of the systems of poisoning with acid; did strike the man and would do so again if he used a pistol.

To His Honor—Drysdale was placed in confinement for attempting to poison and stealing tobacco and whiskey. (The log was produced and read by His Honor.) The witness stated that he set Drysdale at liberty outside Victoria harbor. Did not care about prosecuting him. Have taken legal advice regarding criminal prosecution.

Case adjourned until to-morrow.
